

Abstract of the Disclosure

Apparatus and method assist a person in the safe and proper performance of a squat exercise by precluding movement of the knees of the person in a forward direction beyond the person's toes during execution of the squat exercise. The apparatus includes two 5 separate units for independent placement relative to one another to tailor the squat exercise to better exercise particular muscles.